ABSTRACT

A standardized system and method for describing a network is provided. Subnets within a network may be categorized into a subnet grouping based on whether the subnets within the subnet grouping can route to one another. Subnet subsections corresponding to the categorized subnets may be provided within the subnet grouping. Network topology type sections may specify desired topology types within a subnet subsection.